

BRADLEY HAS WON CONTEST

Reported By Associated Press He Has Been Chosen United States Senator In Joint Ballot.

BY THE KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Bitter Fight For The Coveted Election Appears To Be At An End In The Blue Grass State After Long Hard Fight.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 28.—After weeks of the most bitter fighting ever known in the political history of the state, former Governor Bradley was this afternoon elected United States Senator by the joint vote of sixty republicans and four democrats.
When this result became known the greatest excitement prevailed, not only in the capitol itself but all over the city. Beckham, the democratic candidate, had bitterly contested the fight from the start, having a majority of democrats on the joint ballot on the face of the returns.
First Announcement
The first announcement that came in was that the informal count of the vote on joint ballot former Governor Bradley, republican, seemed to be elected to the United States Senate by a vote of sixty-four to sixty for Beckham, democrat, with votes scattering.
Is Verified
This vote was later verified and with the four votes of the democratic members Bradley's election was insured. According to the figures from the joint election returns the democrats had a total of 73 on the joint ballot and the republicans 65 and the discrepancy must be from pulled votes.
Inside Friction
Beckham made a strong campaign last fall and was an easy winner at the primaries over present Senator James B. McCreary, a former leading democratic politician. Discontent, however, broke out early in his ranks and he has not been able to command the full democratic vote which would have elected him.

Amid Excitement
When this result became known the greatest excitement prevailed, not only in the capitol itself but all over the city. Beckham, the democratic candidate, had bitterly contested the fight from the start, having a majority of democrats on the joint ballot on the face of the returns.

DALKEY TO SPEND 30 DAYS IN JAIL

Four Appeared in Court to Answer Charges of Drunkenness This Morning—Wm. Collins Pleaded "Not Guilty."

August Dalkey, again in a disgustingly besotted state, was picked up by the officers last evening. He is on the verge of delirium tremens and mumbled words to the effect that he was not drunk, but crazy, when brought into court this morning. He is pretty much used to the "nut house" and was this morning remanded by one of his custodians, Judge Fildes, sentenced the veteran to spend five days in jail and pay a fine and costs of $6.10 with the alternative of 25 days more. In default of payment of a fine and costs of $3.10 Patrick Quigley, a feeble old patriarch, went to the bottle for five days. William Farrell will be Sheriff Fisher's guest for ten days unless he can raise $5.10. William Collins pleaded not guilty to a drunkenness charge and his trial was set for tomorrow afternoon.

Two big ones were shot this morning and a little tan colored mongrel which kept sniveling and barking uneasily, was awaiting execution at the noon hour.

He thoughtfully referred to it as a "rag." Sergeant William Beckham, who is in charge of the office, complained to the board of public works and the policeman was dispatched to the recruiting office with an apology upon receiving the following message from Beckham: "You go back there and tell that policeman that the American flag is not a sign and that I have given you instructions to hang the flag out of your window whenever you want to, the bigger the flag the better I shall be pleased."

in the first degree. The specific charge was that Phillips had embezzled $2,000 of the funds of the Hancock company while acting as its representative in Minnesota, North Da-leged that he made contracts in the name of the Hancock company for the sale of air line stock and converted

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

"These nominating conventions of the great political parties are institutions peculiar to our American Republic, gradually evolved to meet the exigencies of the unique method provided by our constitution for choosing a new president and a new vice president every four years," says Victor Rosewater in the American Review of Reviews. "Our first presidents were not formally nominated at all, but received the votes of the presidential electors of their respective parties by a sort of spontaneous common consent. Later the nominating machinery consisted of resolutions of endorsement of a 'favorite son' by the legislature of his state, or his delegation in congress, emphasized by resolutions in other legislatures or mass meetings; and still later it consisted of a caucus to which all the members of a congress of the same political affiliation were invited. The congressional caucus could at best poorly represent the ranks and file of the party, because it included only members from those states and districts which were represented in congress by members of that political faith, and left entirely unrepresented those states and districts whose congressional delegations were made up of members of other political parties. That these crude methods of choosing a party standard-bearer should prove unsatisfactory and eventually break down was inevitable.

"The genesis of our national nominating convention, modeled after similar conventions in the states, dates from 1832, when the first democratic national convention was held, in which each state was given representation and was allowed the same number of votes as was accorded to it in the electoral college. The first republican convention was held in 1856, without any uniformity of representation or manner of choosing delegates. In reality a mass convention with few of the southern states participating. Not until the convention of 1860 did the republicans give a voice to the territories and to the District of Columbia, which were still excluded from the democratic organization. Today both the great political parties are truly national organizations to the extent of participation by all who profess allegiance to their principles without regard to residence in the states of the union, which alone have votes in the electoral college."

THE RESTORATION OF RIVERS.

Popular interest has for the first time in the country's history reached the point at which it is prepared to give backing to a policy of internal improvement involving the utilization of our waterways for transportation purposes. The report of the inland waterways commission, which President Roosevelt has just transmitted to congress, outlines in a striking way the problem and some of its great possibilities. The low state of service of these waterways is attributed by the commission to the policy of railroads, first in competing with river traffic, and secondly, in preventing its development. That the past would be but imperfectly understood if we overlooked the fact that it was not until cooperation among railroads became the ruling idea that river traffic was brought to its low limits. Meanwhile water transportation has been operating in the form of isolated lines on rivers especially. Thus divided against itself it was bound to fail.

Wherever the policy of co-operation between railroads and waterways has been carried into effect, as on the Great Lakes and on the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard, there the successful development of water transportation has continued. The President rightly advocates the restoration of this relation between the two methods of transportation. In doing so he recognizes that competition between rail and water systems has heretofore been not the life but the death of river traffic. In order to restore life river lines must secure vital relations with railroads and thereby become part of the organic distributive system for which the rivers, lakes and seaboard of the United States are most admirably adapted.

SAGE OF SAWBUCK
He who discredits the credit of his nation, is to that extent a traitor and a poor patriot.

In retiring from the office Alderman F. S. Sheldon leaves behind him a record of a businessman as a councillor that should be an example to more of our city's businessmen to become members of the governing bodies of our community. When politics get out of the hands of the professional office-seekers into that of the businessman who has the city's, not personal, interest at heart, then results can be obtained and not until then.

Local city politics are looking up when businessmen are out seeking for the office of alderman and supervisors, taking it out of the hands of the professional politicians as it were. If more of the city's businessmen would enter the arena we would have better results.

Taft will not need Wisconsin's vote at the national convention. The endorsements he is receiving in states that are further up the lists alphabetically will do the work.

It appears that the state central committee did some endorsing on their own hook that was not down on the lists of the La Follette leaders.

Soon it will be the tenth century that pervades to society world and the round of cards and parties will be forgotten for the time being.

So Governor Davidson was endorsed by the republican state central committee after all. Even Connor got his share of endorsement.

Even though there is no snow there is plenty of ice and the spring days have not yet arrived.

On Monday evening the fine new home of P. R. and Mrs. Helmer, No. 32 Highland Park avenue, was filled with some one hundred and twenty-five members and guests of the 20th Century club, it being guest night for that organization. The program was under the management of Messieurs Herron, Hatch and Olds and Miss Lora Northrop, and consisted of piano duets by Mrs. Hatch and Miss Ethel Pumphrey, solos by Mrs. Herron, accompanied by Mrs. Hatch on the piano and by Mr. Pellington on the violin; also readings by Mrs. Clyde McGee, each number of which was delightfully rendered and most cordially received, after which delicious ice cream, cake and coffee were passed, followed by a social hour, making of it a wonderfully pleasant and highly enjoyable evening.

Of late there has been considerable talk on the part of those who are using gas to put in some sort of lighting plant of their own, as the expense is now so large that they can not afford the use of the gas. The trouble seems to be that not enough is charged for the city lights to equalize the cost. Now is the time to get action and remedy the trouble before the change is made. A meter attached to a street lamp for a meter would quickly settle the whole matter, and the village ought surely to pay its share of having its streets lighted and not expect those who use it for their own light and fuel to pay their own bill and that of the village also.

O. Harden, who has been absent sick for the past few days, concluded to pull out for Chicago on Monday to spend a few days and try to recuperate.

The progressive society of the M. E. society met at Miss Jennie Northrop's on Tuesday afternoon. Ice cream was served. There was a good attendance, although several of those who usually attend were sick.

The meetings at the Baptist church are to begin on the 1st of March with Mr. and Mrs. Knight in charge. Mrs. Alice Gilbert visited here a portion of the past week.

On Tuesday evening there was a delightful gathering of one of the high school Sunday school classes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bruce. There was an interesting program and a fine layout in the way of refreshments, the record being that not more of the forty invited and expected should not have availed themselves of the privilege of attending.

R. W. Cheever on Thursday attended the funeral of Mrs. G. W. Clendenen at Fulton, Ill. Mr. Clendenen is the supreme medical examiner for the Myrtle Workers and the founder of the order.

J. P. Kommerer and Al Monroe left for Fulton City, Iowa, last Monday evening.

The old settlers of Rock River valley are to hold their picnic on Aug. 26. With Chas. Gaul as president there is no doubt but that it will be a grand success.

Mrs. A. G. Spaulding is very sick. J. T. Hughes is still in very poor health.

INVENTOR, EXAMINER AND LAWYER. RE INDICTED.

GRAVE CHARGES MADE

N. W. Barton, H. E. Everding and J. A. Heany Are Arrested—Bail Fixed at $10,000 for the Trio.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Ned W. Barton, an assistant examiner of the patent office; Henry E. Everding, a patent attorney with offices in the Hale building, 1328 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, and John A. Heany of York, Pa., an inventor, were Thursday indicted by the grand jury and arrested on a charge of destroying public records.

Bail was fixed at $10,000. The indictment charges that the three, "with intent to steal and destroy," carried away from the patent office letters, specifications and amendments and unlawfully and willfully destroyed them.

Destroyed invention Patent?

The indictments were brought under section 6103 of the revised statutes. They set forth that on September 2, 1907, there was on file an application by Heany for a patent on an invention for manufacturing filaments and electrodes for electric incandescent and arc lamps. These were filed in the office on January 19, 1905. With the application were other papers and specifications and a letter dated March 23, 1905, addressed to Heany, bearing the stamped signature of Commissioner of Patents Alton; Acting Examiner Cowles of "Division 37," of which Barton was examiner and Assistant Examiner Day. An amendment to the application was filed in July, 1906. Papers in this case were destroyed, according to the indictment.

Long Under Investigation.
The scandal which has been under investigation since early in February and which revolves around an invention claimed at more than $5,000,000. The facts disclosed by the investigation were of such a character that they were presented to the grand jury. It is alleged that through connivance with Ned W. Barton, Heany and Barton outwitted more than 30 of the largest electrical concerns in the country, striving to get the same patent. All of these concerns had filed applications for a patent, but from time to time Barton, it is charged, would see the specifications and employ whatever he desired for perfecting Heany's invention. To be successful in this plan, it was necessary to destroy certain records and file substitutes therefor.

Commissioner Moore Talks.
Commissioner of Patents E. B. Moore Thursday made the following statement: "Early in February evidence was laid before the secretary of the Interior tending to show that fraudulent acts had been committed in the prosecution and procurement of a patent. The secretary immediately brought the matter to the attention of the commissioner of patents, who thereupon appointed a committee of investigation and ordered it to make a searching inquiry into the circumstances leading up to the grant of the patent in question and report the results to him. The report of that committee is now in possession of the commissioner."

TUBULAR BEATS ALL

The Tubular is Supreme in Efficiency—Makes a Score of 99 Points Out of a Possible 100.

In all contests where the Tubular is entered in competition with other makes of separators the Tubular wins first prize.

At State Dairymen's Association meeting, held at Tomah, Wis., last season, the Tubular demonstrated its ability to lead all other makes.

This competition included judging for smell, taste, cleanliness, acidity and condition, and was for cream and milk, instead of butter.

The judging was by Professor Emery, Dairy and Pure Food Commissioner of Wisconsin, and his entire staff of official state inspectors. There were a large number of entries of cream, separated by most of the well-known makes of separators. The results were as follows:

Name	Residence	Prize	Separator	Score
R. B. Robertson	Tomah, Wis.	1	Tubular	99
Wm. Humann	Tomah, Wis.	2	Bucket-bowl	97 1/2
P. W. North	Tomah, Wis.	3	Bucket-bowl	97
C. C. Hill	Tomah, Wis.	4	Bucket-bowl	96 1/2
Elmer Hill	Tomah, Wis.	5	Bucket-bowl	96

There were many other entries scoring less than above. These five were the prize winners, each receiving a cash award.

The Tubular came out first best, being 1 1/2 points ahead of its nearest competitor. All information for postal.

STOMACH IS SEAT OF HUMAN LIFE

New Theory Advanced by Young Man Is Spreading Over Entire Country.

L. T. Cooper's theory concerning the human stomach, which he claims to prove with his new medicine, is being given more respect and comment every day.

Cooper claims that 90 per cent. of all ill health is due to stomach trouble. When interviewed about his theory recently, he said: "Stomach trouble is the great curse of the 20th century. As far as the civilized races are concerned, practically all of the chronic ill health of this generation is caused by abnormal stomach conditions. In earlier days, when the human race was closer to nature, and men and women worked all day out of doors, digging their frugal existence from the soil, the tired, drooping, half-sick people that are now so common, did not exist.

"To be sure, there was sickness in those days, but it was of a virulent character, and only temporary. There was none of this half-sick condition all the time with which so many are afflicted nowadays.

"I know positively that every bit of this chronic ill health is caused by stomach trouble. The human stomach in civilized people today is degenerate. It lacks tone and strength. This weakness has gradually come through a sedentary existence. I further know that few people can be rich with the digestive apparatus in perfect shape. The sole reason for my success is because my New Discovery medicine tones the stomach up to required strength in about six weeks' time. That is why I have had more people come and thank me whenever I have come to introduce my medicine, than I have had time to talk with.

Among the immense numbers of people who are now strong believers in Cooper's theory and medicine is Mrs. M. E. Dolano, a prominent resident of the suburb of Brookline, Boston, Mass. She says: "For several years I was broken in health, caused primarily by stomach and nerve troubles. I gradually became worse, until recently I was compelled to go without solid food for days at a time. I had sour stomach, palpitation of the nerves of stomach and heart, dyspepsia, and extreme nervousness. I suffered terribly with insomnia, and my liver, bowels and whole system gradually became deranged. I felt instant relief the first day I began this Cooper medicine. I now feel like a new being. Today I walked all over town, shopping—something I have not done for years. I make this statement wholly from a sense of duty. I feel I owe it to anyone who might find relief and renewed happiness as I have done."

The record made by the Cooper medicine is astonishing. We will take pleasure in discussing it with anyone who wishes to know about them.

—L. T. Cooper.

THE MYSTERY

CHAPTER VI.

"THIS ship," growled Carter, the second officer, to Dr. Tremont, as they stood watching the growing smoke column, "is a worse hotbed of rumors than a down east village. That's the third sea gull we've had officially reported since breakfast."

As he said, three distinct times the Wolverine had thrilled to an imminent discovery, which upon nearer investigation had dwindled to nothing more than a floating fowl. Upon the heels of Carter's complaint came another hail.

"Don't stop! Three points on the starboard bow."

"If that's another gull," muttered Carter, "I'll have something to say to you, my festive lookout."

The news ran electrically through the cruiser, and all eyes were strained for a glimpse of the boat. The ship swung away to starboard.

"Let me know as soon as you can make her out," ordered Carter.

"Aye, aye, sir."

"There's certainly something there," said Forsythe presently. "I can make out a speck rising on the waves."

"It's a wreck from Barnett's derelict," muttered Tremont, scowling through his glasses.

"Hides too high for a spar or anything of that sort," said the junior lieutenant.

"She's a small boat," came in the clear tones of the lookout, "drifting down."

"Any one in her?" asked Carter.

"Can't make out yet, sir. No one's in charge though."

Captain Parkinson appeared, and Carter pointed out the speck to him.

"Yes, there's a dory on the Laughing Lass?" cried Forsythe.

"On her stern davits," answered Tremont.

"It is hardly probable that unattached small boats should be drifting about these seas," said Captain Parkinson thoughtfully. "It she's a dory, she's the laughing Lass' boat."

"That's what she is," said Barnett. "You can see her build plain enough now."

"Mr. Barnett, will you go aloft and keep me posted?" said the captain.

The executive officer climbed to join the lookout. As he ascended those below saw the little craft rise high and slow on a broad swell.

"Same dory," said Tremont. "I'd swear to her in Constantinople."

"What else could she be?" muttered Forsythe.

"Something that looks like a man in the bottom of her," sang out the crew's nest. "Two of 'em, I think."

For five minutes there was stillness aboard, broken only by an occasional low voiced conjecture. Then from aloft:

"Two men rollin' in the bottom."

"Are they alive?"

"No, sir. Not that I can see."

The wind, which had been extremely variable, since dawn, now whipped around a couple of points, swinging the boat's stern to them. Barnett, putting aside his glass for a moment, called:

"There's certainly something there," said Forsythe presently. "I can make out a speck rising on the waves."

"It's a wreck from Barnett's derelict," muttered Tremont, scowling through his glasses.

CATARRH BLOOD UNHEALTHY SYSTEM DERANGED

The entire inner portion of the body is covered with mucous membrane; this membranous tissue is abundantly supplied with blood vessels, veins, arteries, and capillaries. Each of these is constantly supplying to this tissue or lining, blood to nourish and strengthen it and keep the system healthy. When the blood becomes infected with catarrhal matter it is not able to furnish the required amount of healthful properties, but feeds the parts with impurities which disease the membranes and tissues so that they become irritated and inflamed, and Catarrh, with all its disagreeable and dangerous symptoms, is established in the system. There is a constant ringing in the ears, a thin, watery discharge from the nostrils, the breath has an offensive odor, slight fever often accompanies the disease, and gradually the entire health becomes affected and the system upset and deranged. In its earlier stages, when Catarrh is confined to the nose and throat, sprays, washes, inhalations, etc., are soothing and in a way beneficial, because they are cleanly and usually antiseptic, but such treatment has no curative effect, because it does not reach the blood. To cure Catarrh the blood must be purified, and this is just what S. S. S. does. It goes down into the circulation and attacks the disease at its foundation; it removes the cause and makes the blood pure and healthy. Then the blood vessels are filled with fresh, reinvigorated blood, which is carried to all the mucous surfaces and linings, the inflammation and irritation are corrected, the symptoms all disappear, the health is improved and Catarrh is permanently cured. turning consciousness, and a message was dispatched for the physician. On his way he met Barnett, who asked and received permission to accompany him. The stranger was looking steadily in his hand, opening and shutting his parched mouth in silent, piteous appeal for the water that must still be doled to him parsimoniously.

"I thank I'll try him with a little brandy," said Tremont and sent for the liquor.

Barnett raised the patient while the surgeon held the glass to his lips. The man's hand rose, wavered and clasped the glass.

"All right, my friend. Take it yourself, if you like," said Tremont.

The fingers closed. Tremulously held, the little glass tilted and rattled against the teeth. There was one deep, eager sip of swallowing. Then the fevered eyes opened upon the face of the Wolverine's first officer.

"Good, Barnett," said the man in a voice like the rasp of rusty metal.

The man straightened up as from a blow under the jaw.

Hunger for Religion.

No matter how intellectual or practical men may be, they hunger for religion, for a theory of life and for a proper understanding of the relationship which should obtain between them and their Maker. Their nature is responsible for this hunger, and it cannot be ignored any more than the hunger of the stomach for food or that of the mind for knowledge.

TWO THOMASES THRICE INDICTED

GOTHAM FINANCIERS ACCUSED OF LAW VIOLATIONS.

HOLD INSURANCE CASH

Special Grand Jury of New York
County, N. Y., Returns True
Bills Against Them—Plead
"Not Guilty."

New York, Feb. 28.—Edward R. Thomas and Orlando F. Thomas, who are financiers of extensive interests, were indicted Thursday on charges growing out of their management of the funds of the Provident Savings Life Assurance society, which they controlled.

The indictments, which were returned by the special grand jury for New York county, that has been investigating the Provident Life and other financial institutions, are three in number, two being against Edward R. and one against Orlando F. The offenses charged are violations of the state insurance laws and constitute a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $500 or a year's imprisonment, or both, on each count. Late Thursday afternoon the Thomases were arraigned, pleaded not guilty, and were given two weeks in which to change the pleas or demur, meantime being admitted to bail.

Bail Fixed at $5,000 Each.
Justice Dowling fixed bail at $5,000 on each indictment. In the first indictment against E. R. Thomas he is accused of "unlawfully being pecuniarily interested as a beneficiary in a loan from an insurance company doing business in this state of which corporation he was then and there a director." This indictment deals with a loan made by Thomas from the firm of Thomas, MacLay & Co., stock brokers. On April 2, 1907, Thomas was a customer of the firm, and indebted to them on demand loans in large sums. At the same time, the indictment alleges, Thomas, MacLay & Co. were indebted to other financial institutions, the loans being secured with stock and other securities of Thomas, MacLay & Co., and of their customers.

Indebted for $100,000.
On the same day, April 2, 1907, Thomas, MacLay & Co. was indebted to the Hamilton bank for a loan payable on demand, for $100,000, made by the bank to the company, secured by securities similar to those put up for the other loans. The indictment says: "On that day the bank did then and there demand of Thomas, MacLay & Co., payment of said loans and Thomas, MacLay & Co., did not have on that day $100,000 with which to pay the said loan, whereupon it became necessary for Thomas, MacLay & Co., either to borrow $100,000 with which to pay the loan, or then and there suspend business."

Company Then Loans Cash.
After the Hamilton bank had demanded the payment of this particular loan, the Provident Savings Life Assurance society loaned $100,000 to the Italian-American Trust company. On the same day Thomas was a director of the insurance company and the indictment says was unlawfully pecuniarily interested as beneficiary in the loan made by the Provident Life, because Thomas knew that the failure of Thomas, MacLay & Co. would mean a decline in the prices of the securities put up by the firm as collateral on the loans. It was agreed that the loan made by the Provident Life to the Italian-American Trust company should be turned over to Thomas, MacLay & Co., which was done and the loans of the Hamilton bank paid.

TERRENCE V. POWDERLY

Thousands of workmen in all parts of the country have wondered as to the whereabouts and latter-day activities of Terrence V. Powderly, once the most idolized of American labor leaders, but who retired to comparative obscurity after his memorable career as master workman of the Knights of Labor. To his old admirers there is cause for gratification in the creditable record which the veteran labor leader is now making as the first occupant of the newly created position of chief of the division of information of the United States bureau of immigration and naturalization. This newly established institution has been nicknamed "Judge Sam's Employment Agency." Its function is to direct the tide of immigration to those sections of the country where labor is in demand and otherwise aid to bring employers seeking help and laborers in search of jobs into communication with one another.
